

Everett Rescued From Scow, Carried Away In Ice Jam Break-up

Coast Guard Cutter "Comanche" Takes Man Off Vessel Lodged in Ice Jam Near the Light House.

CREEK ICE BREAKS

Heavy Warm Rains Cause Creek Ice to Move and Jam at Creek Mouth.

As the ice in the Rondout creek went out at 2:30 o'clock this morning it swept the scow "Willie and Anna" and the dredge "Hercules" from their moorings at the Dwyer sand bank at Wilbur and carried them down the creek and out into the river, where they still lay imprisoned today in an ice jam that blocks the mouth of the creek and extends as far back up the creek as the plant of the "Tide-water" Oil plant on East Strand.

John Everett, a Portuguese, caretaker on the scow "Willie and Anna," was rescued from his perilous position aboard the scow by members of the crew of the coast guard cutter "Comanche" this morning after spending several anxious hours aboard the scow.

The "Comanche," in charge of Lieutenant Commander Arthur G. Hall, had responded to a call from the Kingston police department asking assistance in rescuing Everett from the ice jam. The "Comanche" lay at Catskill when notified and steamed down the river to Kingston.

Walked Over Ice

The rescue of Everett was accomplished without much difficulty by two members of the crew of the coast guard cutter. The cutter steamed up to the edge of the ice jam and the two members of the crew with ropes tied about their bodies jumped out onto the ice jam and started walking over the ice toward the scow. Everett, who had watched the cutter steam down the river when he saw the two men approaching jumped off the scow onto the ice and walked out to meet them and the three men made their way back to the cutter which took them aboard and landed Everett at the pier at Kingston Point.

There Everett was met by Police Officer Fred Stoudt with his auto and first taken to police headquarters where the story of his rescue was jotted down on the police blotter and later Everett was taken to Wilbur in Officer Stoudt's car.

Mr. Everett when seen at police headquarters this morning said that he was awake all night and had made no attempt to go to bed as he realized that the heavy rain and rising temperature had weakened the ice fields in the creek and that the ice was liable to move out any time.

Suddenly he felt the scow he was on give a sudden lurch and then it started on its journey down the creek in the grip of an ice jam. Everett with a lighted lantern ran up on the deck and waved his lantern frantically to attract attention to his position.

A resident of Wilbur saw the scow and huge dredge being swept down the creek and saw Everett waving the lantern. He rushed to the nearest telephone and called police headquarters.

One of the radio cars was dispatched to the creek front and the police also called the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation and the emergency truck was rushed to the dock front.

The Cornell Steamboat Company was also notified by the police and the tug "Rob" made an attempt to get through the ice jam and rescue Everett but the jam was too heavy and the "Rob" was forced to give up the attempt.

The police then sent out a message on the telephone asking that he be gotten to the crew of the "Comanche" which was berthed for the night at Catskill.

Line Failed to Hold

As the scow with Everett aboard was swept down the creek Police Officer Howard Kinch, one of the two officers in charge of the radio car, threw a line to the scow but it did not hold as the scow swept past.

The "Comanche" reached Kingston Point about 8 o'clock this morning and the rescue of Everett followed.

No attempt was made by the "Comanche" to break up the ice jam at the mouth of the creek as there was not enough open water in the Hudson river to dispose of the ice in the jam.

The dredge and the scow lie imprisoned in the ice just beyond the light house.

Everett, in reply to questions, said that he has been making his home on the scow for two years. The scow had been brought to Kingston at that time and had been moored at the sand bank. The scow is owned by the Jacobs-Granville Company of 15 Moore street, New York city, and has not been placed in com-

Dr. Chen Declares China Can Fight Japan for Years

The Tanaka Scheme, which is said to have been given publicity in Japan in 1927, but details of which are not generally known, as attempts later were made to keep it from being broadcast, was explained to an audience of over 500 at the Uptown Community Center last night at the regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Branch of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

In brief the scheme, according to William E. Dodd, Jr., envisioned domination by Japan of China, India, all of Asia and ultimately world supremacy.

Successful steps toward the goal so far made by Japan include the control of Formosa, Manchoukuo and the conquests in Northern China to date.

The most powerful weapon democratic nations can use against Japan, said Mr. Dodd, is a boycott of Japanese-made goods. That country, he said, is flooding the world with goods made by cheap labor, where living standards are the lowest of any in the world. Returns from this trade are financing Japan's aggressive war against the Chinese people.

The second speaker of the evening was Dr. J. Chen, noted Chinese writer, artist and an Oxford graduate. Dr. Chen, who is a son of Dr. Eugene Chen, former Chinese minister of finance and foreign minister, who retired in 1927, corroborated what Mr. Dodd had said regarding Japan's aims, the condition of her people at home and her dependence upon being able to market her cheaply made goods in the world markets, in order to finance her wars of aggression.

United China

Dr. Chen told the audience Tuesday night that today China is united. He said that this unification took place before the latest aggressive movements by Japan was brought about by the success of the National Salvation Movement in China. This movement, he said, has drawn together both right and left wing elements in China (Nationalists and Communists, if you prefer) and to a very large degree has combined all political elements under one democratic form of government.

The speaker claimed that China was able to continue the war with Japan for years.

Of great interest to the people of the United States was the statement that one of the aims of the Japanese people, after conquering China, was to enter into the growth of cotton on a large scale, making Japan independent of this country for its supply of cotton.

At the conclusion of Dr. Chen's talk a collection was taken up for the aid of the suffering people of China and over $100 was contributed by those present at the meeting.

Japanese Drive to Conquer Lifeline Railway Stalled

Shanghai, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Japanese drive to conquer China's lifeline railway has been stalled in its tracks three weeks.

This was disclosed today by an appeal from American missionaries at Tientsin—65 miles north of the Lunghai lifeline—for assurance that Japanese would not bombard mission refugee camps there.

The missionaries' appeal indicated the Japanese advance had bogged down against Chinese resistance south of Tientsin, which is about 90 miles north of Suchow, junction point of the Lunghai and Tsinpu railways.

Chinese reports of the engagement near Wuhu, 60 miles upstream from the conquered former capital, said both sides suffered heavy casualties. The Chinese attackers had to face the fire of Japanese warships in the river as well as artillery on mountain-tops.

Ranging downstream, five Chinese bombers dropped projectiles on Japanese positions at Nanking, where the United States gunboat Oatut was ready to aid the 17 Americans there if necessary.

Plane Shot Down

The Japanese naval spokesman said one of the attacking planes was shot down and declared little if any damage resulted from the raid, the third since last month, into Japanese bombers, meanwhile kept up their attacks on Chinese supply depots, airdromes and railway lines near Canton, on the south China coast.

On other fronts, Japanese attempts to consolidate their gains apparently were held up by Chinese counter attacks. In Shanghai itself there was a Japanese ad-

Aurora Visits City

Northern Lights Create Weird Display in Brilliant Rays Across Arctic Heavens—European Countries Visited by Same Phenomenon

Again last night a flickering fan of brilliant lights crowned the top of the north country with a mystic radiance clearly visible in Kingston—it was the Aurora Borealis rarely seen in this latitude. For the last few days this strange phenomenon has been lighting the northern heavens occasionally shooting white, blue, red and orange rays across the sky in a weird display.

Other sections of the state and the eastern United States have reported similar visits of the Aurora. The sight, which is always visible in the Arctic circle, comes to more southern climes only on rare occasions.

London, Jan. 26 (AP)—It was not a new war. It was not a fire. It was only the Aurora Borealis—on the blink again—that kept firemen dashing about much of Europe into the early morning hours today.

The firemen couldn't do anything about the scientific phenomenon as they went home to bed, and left it to the scientists to explain all about it to terrified inhabitants.

By press, radio and telephone officials explained that the aurora, rarely seen in Southern or Western Europe, was caused by an electrical disturbance on the Sun's surface.

Many villagers in more remote sections of Europe knelt in prayer as the Northern Lights spread across the sky last night.

(They've been shooting off over sections of North America since Saturday.)

A brilliant cascade of red beams was streaked with ever-changing bands of orange, purple, green and white—the first Aurora in Western Europe since 1709, French scientists said.

Some in Switzerland thought a new war had begun. Telephone systems were tied up in some parts of France, and a few villagers shouted, "C'est La Guerre!" some thought, the world was coming to an end.

The lights were seen clearly in Italy, Spain, Portugal and even southernmost Gibraltar, Austria, Switzerland, the Netherlands, and the British Isles.

Chief Murphy Issued 658 Building Permits

Construction Costs For Estimates Set At $900,883—294 Fires

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy during 1937 issued 658 building permits with a total approximate estimate of cost of $900,883 as compared with 466 permits with an approximate estimate of cost of $389,548.50 in 1936. These figures were given in the 29th annual report of the fire department submitted to the fire board on Tuesday evening by the fire chief.

According to the annual report the fire department during the past year responded to 294 calls while the fire loss totaled $27,663.91, an increase of $233.84 over 1936.

The report, which outlines the various activities of the fire department and also includes the list of accidents, follows:

Chief Murphy's Annual Report.
In compliance with the rules governing the Fire Department, I have the honor of submitting for your approval the 29th annual report of the Fire Department, year ending December 31, 1937.

The department responded to 294 calls during the year, 28 bell alarms, one of these being a second alarm fire and one a third alarm, 235 telephone calls, 24 verbal reports for fire, 7 calls for fire outside the city limits, and 21 emergency calls, a decrease of 37 fire calls in the city over the year 1936. One false alarm in 1937.

The total fire loss for year was $27,663.91 and an increase of $233.84 over year 1936. $2,967.85 of the year's total loss was paid on fires to which the fire department was not called. They were caused by lighted cigarettes falling on furniture, rugs, smoking in bed, electric light bulbs in contact with flammable material, electric iron, hot coals falling from stove, painters torch, candles and smudge from oil burners.

The increasing use of oil for fuel, and the hazard created by improper installation and careless storage and handling of kerosene, conclusively indicate the need of an ordinance controlling the oil burner, and storage problem.

Fire prevention was carried on during the year by the inspection of buildings by members of the department. A special drive was put on during the Fire Prevention Week. All schools were inspected, talks given and fire drills held. A Fire Prevention Essay contest was sponsored by the Paid Firemen's Association, and prizes given to the winners. The firemen are to be commended for sponsoring the contest as it created much interest among the children of the grade schools both public and parochial. Superintendent of Schools, B. C. Van Ingen has instituted a monthly inspection system of all public schools, using a blank form furnished by the Board of Fire Underwriters.

Flood Halts Efforts To Restore Any Water Service to New Paltz

Break in Pipe Line Causes Severe Water Shortage—School and Normal School Closed Tuesday.

ATTEMPTS FAIL
Flood Caused by Ice Jam Prevents Closing the Shut-off Valves.

Village officials were working feverishly today to restore water to the village of New Paltz which has been without its normal supply of domestic water since about noon on Tuesday when one of the pipe lines under the Wallkill river was broken or damaged by ice flows in the Wallkill. Flood conditions in the Wallkill due to jams which have formed downstream from the village today were hampering the work and until the jam is broken and the water drops so as to permit workmen to get to the shut-off valves it will be impossible to restore water to the upper portions of the village.

Because of a lack of water on the high points it was necessary to dismiss the New Paltz school yesterday and also close the State Normal School which is located in the heights above the village. No water is being supplied to the high points and the supply in the lower sections is meager. Little water is being supplied above the elevation of the bank and the village is faced with serious fire menace should a blaze break out.

One prominent resident of the village this morning called attention to the need of a suitable stand pipe on the heights where a storage supply could be held in case of just this type of emergency.

Plumbers of the village were kept on the jump throughout Tuesday afternoon and night taking care of heating plants and hot water boilers which began "cutting-up" when the supply of water failed. Fortunately the temperature was not low and there is no immediate danger of the through the greater portion of the village is badly handicapped and inconvenienced.

Break in Mains

The break is supposed to be in at least one of the two water mains which cross the Wallkill creek and bring the village water supply from the reservoir on the Shawangunk mountain below Lake Mohonk. There is an aqueduct line from the reservoir down to the flats along the creek where gate houses control the supply of water, which is sent through two eight inch pipe lines which run under the Wallkill river. One of the pipe lines was laid about 40 years ago and is of cast iron. Some 20 years ago a second steel pipe line was laid as an emergency measure and at that time connections were made so that in the event of damage to one of the pipe lines the valves could be turned off, cutting off the one pipe line and the second pipe line could supply the village with water.

The present situation is brought about by reason of the flood waters which prevent the water works employees from getting to the gate houses and shutting down the valves which supply the broken line. As soon as the flood waters recede and workmen can reach the gate house to turn off the valves which cut out the broken main the village can be supplied with water.

It is the reduction in pressure from loss through the break which prevents the higher portions of the village from getting water.

This morning it was stated that it was impossible to get within 200 yards of the valve chamber because of the flood waters which are backed up on the Springtown flats behind ice jams lower down the river.

From one direction it was impossible to get within 200 yards of the valve chamber and from the other direction one could approach only within a quarter of a mile unless a boat were used.

Best Horticultural Crowd In Six Years Is Present As Sessions Begin At Armory

Jury Selected in Suit Arising Out Of Alleged Loan

A jury was selected this morning in Supreme Court for the trial of an action brought by Vito Iacobellis against his brother, Michele Iacobellis. The action is to recover the sum of $2,000 which plaintiff alleges he loaned his brother. The original loan is claimed to have been $3,000 upon which payment of $1,000 was made. Arthur B. Ewig and Cashin & Ewig appeared for plaintiff and Fred Stang appeared for the defendant. Mr. Stang, who is of counsel to Michael A. Petrovich, attorney of record, after selecting the jury stated that counsel for the defense who is engaged today in court elsewhere would be present Thursday to begin the trial.

Plaintiff, Vito Iacobellis, is engaged in the ice business in Kingston as head of Wilbur Ice and Coal Company of Albany avenue.

After the jury had been selected and accepted by counsel, Justice Schirck excused the jury until 10 o'clock Thursday morning when the trial will be resumed.

Jurors not engaged on the case now being tried were excused on February 2, at 10 o'clock, when they will return.

No. 167, Irving Rubin against Lillian Jacobowitz and etc., a negligence action, was put over the term because of the death of defendant's mother yesterday.

No. 118, J. Frank Gardner against Clyde F. Gardner, an action on contract, was also taken from the calendar with the understanding that if no settlement is reached in two weeks' time the matter will be sent to an official referee for trial.

No. 130, The First National Bank and Trust Company of Saugerties against William N. Applegate, an action for goods sold and delivered, remained on the day calendar when it was announced that it was in the process of settlement.

There were no additions to the day calendar and court recessed until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. When the case now on trial is concluded court will recess until February 2, at 10 o'clock, when all jurors will return.

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—The position of the treasury on January 24: Receipts, $28,519,642; expenditures, $42,244,344.09; balance, $2,945,283,215.28; customs receipts for the month, $20,222,536.02. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $2,434,234,199.61; expenditures $4,200,676,181.56, including $1,145,140,458.63 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $865,815,981.95; gross debt $37,424,888,702.88, a decrease of $4,561,399.94 below the previous day; gold assets $12,755,311,921.65, including $1,222,991,571.56 of inactive gold.

Played Poor, Died Rich

Albany, Ore., Jan. 26 (AP)—For years Michael H. Donnelly lived alone on his farm, apparently in poverty, but actually possessing considerable wealth hidden in cans, nooks and crannies. His sister, Mrs. Mary E. Horzican, came from Syracuse after he died January 15, and petitioned for appointment as his executrix of his estate estimated at more than $52,000 in cash and bonds, $8,900 in real estate.

Playgrounds Proposed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—A statewide system of playgrounds and summer camps for underprivileged children was proposed in New York's legislature today as a means of decreasing juvenile delinquency. The recreational facilities were advocated by Assemblyman Charles H. Breitbart, Kings county Democrat, who asked federal cooperation in financing the proposed program.

To Resume Hearings

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Mayor Thomas L. Holling prepared today to resume a hearing into charges of misconduct against two city civil service commissioners, Stanley S. Jenkins and Joseph B. Ford. The hearing opened Monday.

Labor Law Amendment Introduced by Conway

Albany, Jan. 26.—(Special) —A labor law amendment requiring the 24 hour week rest period provided for by the labor law for workers, to include a 12-hour period between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m., in order to insure time off during daylight hours, has been introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, Republican of Kingston.

Assemblyman Conway has also offered a bill regulating the sale of liquid fuels, by placing the state agriculture and markets department in control of liquid fuel dealers.

The bills were referred to committees for further consideration.

More Men, Guns For U. S. to Meet War Mad World

(By The Associated Press)
Uncle Sam cast about today for ways to bolster American defenses before a turbulent, quarrelsome world.

More men, more guns, added strength in the air and at sea, stronger defenses on land—these are the needs advanced by proponents of armaments increase.

They find their reasons in the Spanish civil war, which for a year and one-half has fed Europe's war fever; the Chinese-Japanese war, with its frequent incidents involving foreign nations; armaments building by other nations.

In China, the rumbling of Shanghai's seven charity morgues wagons daily emphasizes war's toll is not alone from the battle front, but also is taken behind the lines by disease and starvation. Fifty-one thousand Chinese refugees and poor have died in Shanghai since the warfare began there last August, benevolent burial officials say.

Fighting is scattered throughout much of China, with Japanese in control of the major cities—Shanghai, Nanking, Peking and others. The Japanese avow their intent to form a Japanese-Chinese-Manchoukuo economic coalition and want a new, favorable Chinese government.

Japanese were stalled, however, dispatches indicated today, in a drive to conquer China's lifeline railway, the Lunghai. Chinese were active near Wuhu, 60 miles above Nanking, and heavy casualties by both sides were reported in an engagement there.

Infantry fought hand-to-hand in Spain's conflict, the battle continuing still above Teruel, 160 miles to the east of Madrid. There were, too, the customary air raids by both sides. Forty-one were killed yesterday in an insurgent air raid on Barcelona, the Spanish Government said.

The world's chief avowed peace agency, the League of Nations, has been unable to bring any halt to the two wars and its council met today to debate junking sanctions as a league instrument.

Small nations hold sanctions against them as much as the nation against which they are directed in an effort to halt aggression. The larger nations, particularly Britain and France, want sanctions left in the government text but appear willing to forget them as a practical policy.

3 Escape from State Hospital At Poughkeepsie

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Undersheriff Hiram C. Carroll directed a large search today for three men he said escaped from the Hudson River State Hospital last night. He linked the theft of three automobiles, an assault on an elderly woman and a holdup of a grill near Vassar College with them.

Shortly after their disappearance, Carroll said, a man attacked an elderly woman in the kitchen of her home near the hospital. He was frightened away by the screams of the woman's children.

Later the undersheriff added, a waitress in a grill near Vassar was robbed of $25 by a man he said answered the description of the one who attacked the woman. The automobiles, Carroll said, were stolen from various sections of the city shortly after the escape. He said he did not know how the trio made their getaway from the institution.

Champlain Valley Exhibit

A new feature in the commercial exhibit this year is a showing from the Champlain Valley, which includes the country from Peru, not far south of Plattsburg, to Chazy. It includes the big Chazy McIntosh orchard of which Jay Gelder is manager, the largest McIntosh orchard in the country. Inspector K. Waltemire, who was instrumental in getting an exhibit from this section, which, by the way, considers itself as belonging more nearly to the Hudson Valley territory than to the Rochester territory.

Cut Prices, Not Wages to End Recession, Says Roosevelt

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—A primary objective in the Administration's Business-Betterment efforts, President Roosevelt has made plain, is maintenance of the wage-earner's power to buy what he needs.

Mr. Roosevelt resorted to a formal statement at his press conference late yesterday to reiterate, "clearly and unequivocally" that the way out of the recession is to cut prices, not wages.

"If industries reduce wages this winter and spring, they will be deliberately encouraging the withholding of buying," he declared. "They will be fostering downward spiral and they will make it necessary for their government to consider other means of creating purchasing power."

These "other means" quickly became a topic of speculation. They were interpreted by some observers to mean more vigorous demands for legislative control over wages and hours, increased relief spending and new public works.

Chairman John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. was calling for such measures in an address made at almost the same hour.

Lewis, speaking at the convention of the United Mine Workers, advocated a $1,000,000,000 increase in this year's Federal relief spending and a $5,000,000,000 Housing Program.

Mr. Roosevelt's "Don't cut wages" argument was a written reply to a question as to whether he agreed with the assertion of B. F. Fairless of the United States Steel Corporation that steel prices could not be cut without cutting wages.

"Those who believe in the profit system," Mr. Roosevelt said, "must recognize that those who get the profits when business is good must bear the losses when business is temporarily slack."

"The steel industry can not make a profit at 30 per cent capacity, but it can at 50 per cent of capacity. The only way to get volume is to produce goods for a price the public will pay."

To cast the burden of a temporary business recession upon workers, the president contended, "is not only moral bankruptcy, but the bankruptcy of sound business judgment."

At system," Mr. Roosevelt said, "must recognize that those who get the profits when business is good must bear the losses when business is temporarily slack."

section, called attention to the fact that three of the new varieties of apples which are just becoming known commercially, are shown in this exhibit. They are the Kingston, Lobo and Kendall. The Freeman man was interested in finding out whether the Kingston apple was named so as a tribute to the old colonial city, but had little luck in his inquiries. Dr. Richard Wellington, head of the division of Pomology at the Geneva Experiment Station, said that it was not an apple they had developed. He examined the apple and said it looked very much like a McIntosh seedling, possibly developed in Canada and named after the Canadian Kingston. Dr. Wellington added that the Kendall was a Geneva apple and although just coming into commercial prominence, was first produced at Geneva some 24 years ago. The Kendall is a cross between the McIntosh and a Russian apple, has a high color, is of good quality and apparently is not subject to scald. He considers it one of the most promising apples produced in recent years.

The Champlain exhibit is also noticeable for the fact that out of six packages, five are graded "practically no defects." The sixth was defective mostly because of mechanical injuries to the apples. They show McIntosh, Delicious, Cortland and Snow apples.

There is a large Cornell-Geneva exhibit, showing apples and numerous plates illustrating experiments in the control of the codling moth.

The machinery exhibits embrace about everything used by the fruit grower, up to big spray tanks and down to the smallest pieces of equipment. Many firms show chemical products used for spraying and dusting in the eternal warfare that must be waged against insect pests.

Numerous nurseries are represented, with specimens of stocks, showing new and standard old varieties of fruit trees.

This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, Mayor Helsman was scheduled to extend to the visitors the greetings of the city of Kingston. He was to be followed by George A. Morse of Williamstown, N. Y., who was elected president of the society at the annual meeting held in Rochester January 11 to 14.

Other officers elected at that time were: Roy P. McPherson, re-elected secretary-treasurer; Roe Stevenson, Cayuga, Wessol Ten Brock, Jr., Hudson, Percy Morgan, Lewiston, and Bruce P. Jones, Hall, N. J., elected vice presidents. The executive committee is composed of Jay Gelder, Chazy, Albert E. Welch, Adams Basile, Lawrence Howard, Kinderhook, Robert R. Brown, Watertown, Theodore Oxholm, Esopus and Poughkeepsie, Ontario.

This evening at the Governor Clinton there will be a showing of motion pictures, "Leading Through Africa," by Professor J. Parrott of the Geneva Experiment Station.

F. D. R. Against Wage Reductions

Perhaps the most significant news of yesterday was the President's pronouncement against wage reductions, with the possible exception of some hourly rates "in some building trades in some localities," at the same time asking mass production industries to lower the prices of their goods.

The alternative suggested was a move on the part of the government to swing again into the good old "pump priming" system, which presumably will pile still higher the national debt and in the end make it still more difficult for industry to move on and pay the share that will be assessed against it in the form of further and more crippling taxes.

Contrasting the President's attitude yesterday with his recent "get tough" conference with business men, the Washington correspondent to the Wall Street Journal says: "To borrow a phrase from the familiar French proverb, the more the business men talk to Mr. Roosevelt, the more he is the same."

The first 15 railroads to report December operating income show net for the month of 53.8 per cent from a year ago. D. & H. had net for the month of $66,284, compared with $478,236 a year ago. Great Northern's net of $855,322 compared with $3,233,924 a year ago.

Although its production of finished steel products was at the rate of only 41.3 per cent of capacity in the last quarter of 1937, U. S. Steel showed profit for the quarter, before surtax on undistributed profits, of $4,577,938; this compares with $20,923,995 in the same period a year ago.

David Lillenthal, TVA director, was authorized to conduct negotiations with private utilities, municipalities and other public agencies on the possibility of sale by private utilities of their electric properties.

Ford continues production scale of 4,000 units weekly; other companies are gearing production to demand, with trend downward.

Leading private label corn flakes producers, excepting one, have followed General Foods in reducing prices.

Common stockholders would be barred from participation in the new company under a reorganization plan for Great Western recommended to ICC by Finance Examiner Kirby.

Neither Wilson & Co. nor Zeigler Radio action on common dividends yesterday.

Atlantic Refining had earnings equal to $3.51 a share for year ended December 31, compared with $2.59 for preceding year.

Remington Rand earned 76 cents a share in quarter ended December 31, vs. 55 cents on a different number of shares a year ago. Profits of Wayne Pump for year ended November 30 were $5.65 a share vs. $4.57 in preceding year.

Earnings of Inland Steel for year ended December 31, were $12,655,317 vs. $12,800,545 in preceding year.

Caprotti Breaks Into 5-Round Class Friday

Pete Caprotti, lightweight brother of Johnny Caprotti, popularly known as Kid Chaplin, will follow him into the five-round bout class Friday night at the municipal auditorium when he tangles with Johnny DeLuca of Albany.

Under the tutelage of Sammy O'Grady at the M. C. A. gym, Pete has made long strides as a boxer and puncher. He's headed for the main bout class among those who have watched him train with Tommy Zano. Johnny Caprotti's professional welterweight.

Two weeks ago Pete won his three rounder by a knockout in the second heat, furnishing the fight with one of the thrills of the night at the municipal audi-

Efforts to Restore Water Halted

expected to check the flood waters in the upper sections of the river and it was hoped that this would cause the water to drop during the day and permit access to the valve chambers.

Ice jams formed at several points and as the pressure became too great some of the ice would begin to move and run down stream for some distance only to form another jam. It was reported that the ice however was slowly running downstream.

Until the valve chamber can be reached and the pipe lines turned off it will not be known which of the lines is broken or if it is but one of the mains. It is presumed that the ice does have either damaged or broken one of the lines and if the second pipe line remains intact water will be restored to the village when workmen are able to reach the valves.

Today it was impossible to traverse the Springtown road through from Tillson to New Paltz and likewise it was impossible to use the Libertyville road past the County Home. The Wallkill river had left its banks at several points behind ice jams and flooded the road.

Pressure Low

In the lower sections of the village the supply of water was adequate but pressure was low.

Closing the village schools will mean a loss of revenue from state sources unless the time lost is made up.

Had the village system been supplied with a stand-pipe of sufficient storage capacity for such an emergency the pressure could have been maintained to the higher sections of the village which are now entirely without water.

Shortly before noon today it was stated that it was impossible to tell just when service would be restored as this depends entirely upon the ability to reach the shut-off valves and then resumption of service would depend upon whether one or both of the pipe lines had been damaged. Repairs will be made as soon as the water drops and workmen can locate the break.

Elks' Testimonial For A. L. Hill

Kingston Lodge, No. 550, B. P. O. E., tendered a testimonial dinner to Dr. A. L. Hill at the Elks Home Tuesday evening in honor of his 70th birthday anniversary.

The dinner was attended by about 50 of Dr. Hill's fraternal associates. While Martin J. Cashin, also a past Exalted Ruler of Kingston Lodge can boast of more birthday anniversaries than can Dr. Hill, in point of seniority Dr. Hill is the senior Past Exalted Ruler of the lodge having served in that capacity in 1905, just five years after the local lodge was organized in 1900.

Corporation Counsel John M. Caslin was toastmaster and during the evening called upon William H. Van Ethen, E. Frank Flanagan, C. K. Loughran, M. H. Herzog, George D. Logan and "Mick" Ryan for remarks. During the ceremony Dr. Joseph H. Rothenberg, Exalted Ruler of Kingston Lodge, presented Dr. Hill with a very handsome traveling kit.

It was in 1892 that Dr. Hill first became a member of the Elks when he joined Newburgh Lodge. In 1900 when Kingston Lodge, No. 550, was formed Dr. Hill became a member of the local lodge and in 1905 he became Exalted Ruler.

The observance of Dr. Hill's 70th birthday anniversary last evening is coincidental with the anniversary of the founding of the Elks order. This anniversary will be celebrated locally on February 27 when a district initiation will be held at the local lodge. President McGrath of the State Association will be present at that time as well as delegates from seven lodges of this area.

New Political Club

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—A new political club—the Non-Professional Old Women's Republican Club—is in the making. Mrs. Edward Thorne of Albany, organizer of the group, said she has invited any "Republican lady of leisure" over 30 years of age to become a member. She said she would confer with State Republican Chairman William Murray regarding program plans.

Home Institute FIND FRIENDLY CHEER IN POEMS

We can't live without poetry. The heart needs noble words to feed on—such as Abou Ben Adhem speaks in the beloved and famous poem by Leigh Hunt.

To the angel Abou said: "I pray thee, then, Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

The angel wrote and vanished. The next night It came again with a great wakening light, And showed the names whom love of God had blessed.

And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest."

Poetry gives us courage, too. Remember Kipling's "If." "If you can wait and not be tired by waiting, Or being lied about, don't deal in lies."

And what matter if the day be dark and wintry—if you can read Wordsworth's lines: "—When my heart with pleasure fills, And dances with the daffodils."

At the twilight hour, tender memories come with George MacDonald's lullaby "Baby." "When did you get those eyes so blue?"

Freeman Social Club Banquet

The 23rd annual banquet of the Freeman Social Club was held at the Hotel Elchler, Tuesday evening, and 50 of the members in attendance enjoyed a steak dinner and program put on by the talented members of the group, who rendered instrumental and vocal selections.

Alderman James E. Connelly of the job department was toastmaster and presided over the following program:

Vocal selection—Home on the Range—William Guidy, A. Patmore, A. Campbell, W. Schapp, C. Derrenbacher and J. Dittus, Jr.

Accordion solo—J. Huber Down by the Old Mill Stream—Nick Huber, A. Perry, George Reis and Ed Kuehn

Violin solo—Walter Kleffer Let Me Call You Sweetheart—J. Silverski, John Hartman, W. Dittus and Ray Haines

Double Dare You—Henry Munch Accompaniment for the vocal solo and dinner music was furnished by Paul Purcell and Ted Riccobono.

A program booklet, dedicated to the late Jay E. Klock, whose picture appeared on the frontispiece, was presented to everyone at the banquet.

HOME BUREAU

Home Conferences.

Woodstock, Jan. 26.—The Woodstock schedule for an approaching Home Bureau conference includes a kitchen conference on February 2 at the home of Mrs. Ivan Summers and a living room conference on February 23 at the home of Mrs. G. C. Layman.

The kitchen conference will be an all-day meeting with a second lesson in pneumonia control in the afternoon, after a basket luncheon.

Mrs. G. C. Layman, leader of the Woodstock unit, attended the leaders' conference in Kingston last week at which plans for the last program were made. Two features which Mrs. Layman announced will be of interest to Woodstockers are a new course on homemade games for adults and children's entertainments, and a plan to exchange group leaders from time to time. The Woodstock unit has decided to take part in the Apple Blossom Festival next spring.

Hairdressers Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Hairdressers Association will be held Thursday evening, January 27, at 7 o'clock at the Beauty Salon of Miss Helen Walshe, 317 Wall street. The newly elected officers will be installed at this time. Members are urged to be present. A social hour will follow.

Church Night Service

It was announced today by Charlotte W. Tappen, secretary of the Ulster County Red Cross that anyone desiring to contribute toward the suffering people of the International Settlement in China can do so by mailing contributions to the local office, 260 Fair street, or calling personally with donations between 9:30 and 12:30 mornings.

Checks should be made out to the American Red Cross. Clothing is not desired.

Announcement from the local Red Cross chapter concerning the drive for funds came after an appeal by the chairman of the National Red Cross, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, for help to be sent to China. Distribution will be made by a committee of business men in China appointed by the American ambassador, Nelson T. Johnson.

The National Red Cross took action to aid the 650,000 sick and homeless in the International Settlement on suggestion of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Moose Endorse Bud Festival

The Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival to be held May 6, 7 and 8, is daily gaining supporters. As its regular meeting Tuesday evening, Kingston Lodge, No. 570, Loyal Order of Moose, went on record as endorsing the festival and Dictator George W. Moore named Michael Shank, chairman of the committee to cooperate with the general group in charge of the festival.

A membership campaign now in progress will close in April and through it the lodge will add a number of new members. At the meeting Tuesday evening, Mortimer H. Block spoke on the ideals of the order and stressed the value of an increased membership. At the next meeting several candidates will be initiated into the lodge.

About The Folks

Al King, in charge of the Ulster County Pistol Permit Bureau, has been confined to his home, 128 Pearl street since Friday by illness.

THE JOINERS

News of interest to members of fraternal societies.

The regular meeting of Atherton Rebekah Lodge, No. 357, will be held Thursday evening, January 27, in Mechanics' Hall, Henry street. Meeting opens at 8:15, followed by card party at 8:15.

The regular meeting of Rip Van Winkle Triangle, No. 81, will be held in the Masonic lodge rooms, 280 Wall street, Thursday evening, January 27. After the meeting a public card party will be held to which all are cordially invited. Members of the Eastern Star and Master Masons are always welcome.

COUTANT ATTENDING HEATING AND AIR SHOW

A. H. Coutant, refrigerator service man of 101 Roosevelt avenue, is attending the heating and air conditioning exposition in the Grand Central Palace, New York city, this week. Mr. Coutant is interested in refrigeration machinery as applied to air conditioning equipment.

WEINER ROSE CO. TO HAVE SOCIAL PARTY

The Weiner Rose Company will hold another of its series of social parties on Thursday evening, January 27.

These parties are scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock and are held at the Central Fire Station. The public is invited.

Turkey Supper

The Baraca Class of the Wurts Street Baptist Church is planning for another Turkey supper for which the men of the church have had quite a reputation. This will be put on as a Lincoln's Birthday Supper, Friday, February 11. Tickets are in the hands of members of the class and they are looking forward to a large number who will support them in their enterprise. The supper will be handled entirely by the men and they promise plenty for all who come, at a moderate price.

Will Testify.

Lockport, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Defense attorneys said today they would place Warren Hyland, 36, North Tonawanda, charged with the hatchet slaying of his mother, on the stand in his own defense. He contends he killed her while she slept when "something snapped in my brain."

Ski Meet Cancelled

North Creek, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—The New York State Women's Championship Downhill and Slalom ski races scheduled for January 29 and 30 have been cancelled, officials announced because of lack of entrants.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 26, 1938

FIRE LOSS $27,663

The total fire loss in this city
for year 1937 was $37,663.91, an increase of $233.81 over the year 1936. These figures are reported in the 29th annual report of the Kingston Fire Department.

The causes listed are: lighted cigarettes falling on furniture and rugs, smoking in bed, electric light bulbs in contact with flammable material, electric iron, hot coals
falling from stove, painter's torch, candles and smudge from oil burners. Fire Chief Murphy states the increasing use of oil
for fuel and the hazard created by improper installation and careless storage and handling is conclusive evidence of the need of an ordinance controlling the oil burner and storage problem.

In all probability, the actual physical loss from the fires here
during the past year was largely covered by insurance. But that doesn't mean that "fire bill" is paid, because the indirect costs of fire are several times as great as the direct costs.

When a business establishment
is gutted by fire, it no longer pays its normal taxes. Its employees are discharged. Their purchasing power is brought to an abrupt stop. They are no longer able to pay rent and bills, and
many are thrown on relief rolls.
Every merchant and every citizen feels the adverse effects of empty pay envelopes.

Thus a large fire loss touches us all. Its consequences extend throughout the entire community.
In time the building may be replaced, new machinery installed and men again given jobs. But in the meanwhile the community
has suffered an irrevocable loss
in wages, taxes and business turnover.

Fire is everybody's business.
We are mistaken when we think it is a hazard that destroys someone else's property doesn't concern
us. For all of us pay the bill for fire and all of us reap the benefits when fire loss is reduced.

JAPAN PURRS

Japanese peace terms for China are interesting. China must abandon "her Communist sympathies" and help Japan fight for Communism. She must pay "indemnities" to Japan for making
it necessary for Japan to destroy her cities, kill her people and lay waste her land. There must be an "economic agreement" between China and Japan.

But the Tokyo state-men are gentle and sorrowful about it all.
Premier Konohe complains that China "is blind to the larger interests in eastern Asia and is ignoring our magnanimity and Germany's friendly intention."
China has "exhibited no readiness to ask frankly for peace, but only sought to delay the matter and ultimately failed to send a reply
that could be regarded as in any way sincere." It is too bad that the Chinese should be so bolligerent and scorn the friendly
services of a Good Samaritan neighbor.

As for other countries, "Let me state explicitly," says Konohe,
"that Japan will respect to the fullest the rights and interests of power-occupied areas (areas occupied by foreign powers), and also is prepared to leave the door
wide open to all powers, welcoming their cultural and economic cooperation." This last statement is a special bid to the United States, originator of the "open door" policy in China, and an effort to turn China's friends against her.

Having swallowed the Chinese canary, Japan purrs. Yet there are signs of digestive trouble.
And if the Tokyo statesmen really mean what they say about the open door and cultural cooperation, it is because they are afraid

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

MADE IN BRAZIL
BY ALAN LEMAY

Hitler and Mussolini seem to have been busy in claiming that another nation had joined their group when the Brazilian government was turned into a one-man
project by President Vargas. So, too, some Americans were busy
in concluding that Fascism had taken over a big area in the Western Hemisphere. The more reports we receive from careful observers, the clearer it becomes that whatever has happened in Brazil is Brazilian and not European. Turner Catalogue of the New York Times writes from Rio de Janeiro:

Wherever one presents himself
here these days, whether at the Ministry of the so-called "cooperative State", at the offices
and counting houses of the many influential foreign businesses established along the seaboard, in shops, on beaches or in the streets, one is confronted with the same story.

It is that there is nothing
extra-Brazilian about the new set-up and that wherever any resistance to Fascism or Nazism
is found, they are to be quickly
withdrawn or smothered and hereafter resisted.

There is a kind of martial law
in force, but there is more individual freedom than has been known in either Germany or Italy for a long time. Citizens come and go as they please, discuss the government, criticize it
if they wish, and even poke fun
at President Vargas and his ministers with apparent impunity.
While the United States would prefer to have a genuine republic in existence down there, it finds this New World brand of corporate state less disturbing
than an Old World importation would be.

Chapter Eight
Refuge!

SUDDENLY, there was a ripping
crackle of rifle fire, concentrated at first, then quickly subsiding
into the ragged pounding of irregularly reloaded guns. Over these present began to sound the hoarse, blunt concussion of lan-takas, the small-bore brass cannon
of the Malays.

Something like cold fire jumped into my uncle's eyes. "By God, Mantusen still holds Balingong!"
I remember hearing myself say,
"The Dyaks may be fighting among themselves."

"With lantakas, you fool!"
His decision then was instant,
without thought or reason; it was
as sudden as the reflex of a muscle,
or the crack of a whip.

"Paul, swing he, nose upstream! Set your oars! I'm going through!"
I started to say, "Wait! You
can't!"

He didn't hear me. "Wait your
swing—wait your swing—Now
pull!"
The faces of the men were blank
with astonishment, but they
obeyed with everything they had,
lashed into action by the sung of
Clyde's voice. "Pull, you fools!
Pull as you never pulled! Lift her,
if you want to live!"

The water boiled from the
blades, and from every blade a
deep spiraling hole in the river
opened up to go whirling away
down the stream. It was as if the violence of my uncle's will had
lifted the whole boat half out of
the water, and kicked the river
out from under him.

Now the ugly, rabid drone of
voices with which Dyaks go into
action rose from the stockade.
Brown figures raced along the
shore and ran parallel to the jungle. They piled into 20 praus.
A throwing-spear splashed into the
water close by the boat, sending
up a little crystal spout from the
brown polished surface of the flood. It was a small sound, not terrifying in itself; it might have
been made by a jumping fish, except that I had seen the quick
flicker in the air that was the
attempt of a brown savage to get
himself an oarsman.

"Pull, will you? Can't you pull?"
Somehow we made the turn untouched. Far up ahead, at the end
of the next long reach, Balingong
hove in sight at last, raised high on
pillings whose feet were in the water.

Balingong was a strange town,
built there by many elements, not
one of which was white. Not even
a single ugly Dutch bodega soft-
ened its completely native look.
The river here spread out widely
into many-throated shallows, cut
up by sandbars and mud islands;
into most of the houses stood on
pillings in the water itself, or in
small mud which would be water
the river turned backwash with the high tide. There were about 400
of those houses, set high on their
stilts, made of bamboo and split
bamboo and nipa thatch. The disorderly arrangement of the place
made it look larger than it was,
rambling and tortuous, so that the
time I ever saw it I thought
there were thousands of those
houses there.

Shower of Spears
JUST now Balingong had a single
immediate meaning. It was
refuge. The bold, dangerous recon-noitering of my uncle had suddenly changed into something else.
We had come gropingly at first,
feeling our way. Clyde's abrupt brilliantly swift decision brought
me to a halt. I thought questionable
in the extreme, but snatched us
through the blockade, and there
was no longer any question of turning back. Already we were irre-
trievably caught in the undertow
of events.

With the first sight of Baling-
gong, I saw that the town was
strangely changed, and after a
moment I knew what was the matter. The place of the Rajah Man-
tusen was no longer there.

Because his slaves could bring
in his water supply from distant
springs, the Rajah Mantusen had
been able to elect that no other
house in Balingong should be between his own and the sea. It had been set in the river like most of
the rest, and like them had been
built of bamboo, but topped with
single its roof was decorated
with carved figureheads. Skilled upon pillings, but impressive in
its extent, the bamboo palace had
always been the first thing in sight,
coming up the river.

as sudden as the reflex of a muscle,
or the crack of a whip.

"Paul, swing he, nose upstream! Set your oars! I'm going
through!"
can't!"

He didn't hear me. "Wait your
swing—wait your swing—Now
pull!"
The faces of the men were blank
with astonishment, but they
obeyed with everything they had,
lashed into action by the sung of
Clyde's voice. "Pull, you fools!
Pull as you never pulled! Lift her,
if you want to live!"

The water boiled from the
blades, and from every blade a
deep spiraling hole in the river
opened up to go whirling away
down the stream. It was as if the
violence of my uncle's will had
lifted the whole boat half out of
the water, and kicked the river
out from under him.

Now the ugly, rabid drone of
voices with which Dyaks go into
action rose from the stockade.
Brown figures raced along the
shore and ran parallel to the
jungle. They piled into 20 praus.
A throwing-spear splashed into the
water close by the boat, sending
up a little crystal spout from the
brown polished surface of the
flood. It was a small sound, not
terrifying in itself; it might have
been made by a jumping fish, except that I had seen the quick
flicker in the air that was the
attempt of a brown savage to get
himself an oarsman.

"Pull, will you? Can't you pull?"
Somehow we made the turn un-
touched. Far up ahead, at the end
of the next long reach, Balingong
hove in sight at last, raised high on
pillings whose feet were in the
water.

Balingong was a strange town,
built there by many elements, not
one of which was white. Not even
a single ugly Dutch bodega soft-
ened its completely native look.
The river here spread out widely
into many-throated shallows, cut
up by sandbars and mud islands;
into most of the houses stood on
pillings in the water itself, or in
small mud which would be water
the river turned backwash with the
high tide. There were about 400
of those houses, set high on their
stilts, made of bamboo and split
bamboo and nipa thatch. The dis-
orderly arrangement of the place
made it look larger than it was,
rambling and tortuous, so that the
time I ever saw it I thought
there were thousands of those
houses there.

Shower of Spears
JUST now Balingong had a single
immediate meaning. It was
refuge. The bold, dangerous recon-
noitering of my uncle had suddenly changed into something else.
We had come gropingly at first,
feeling our way. Clyde's abrupt
brilliantly swift decision brought
me to a halt. I thought questionable
in the extreme, but snatched us
through the blockade, and there
was no longer any question of turning back. Already we were irre-
trievably caught in the undertow
of events.

With the first sight of Baling-
gong, I saw that the town was
strangely changed, and after a
moment I knew what was the matter. The place of the Rajah Man-
tusen was no longer there.

Because his slaves could bring
in his water supply from distant
springs, the Rajah Mantusen had
been able to elect that no other
house in Balingong should be between his own and the sea. It had
been set in the river like most of
the rest, and like them had been
built of bamboo, but topped with
single its roof was decorated
with carved figureheads. Skilled
upon pillings, but impressive in
its extent, the bamboo palace had
always been the first thing in sight,
coming up the river.

A QUESTION OF COSTS

By BRESSLER

THAT WOULD COST US A GREAT DEAL MORE, SENATOR!

Only some long lines of blackened pilings stood there now.
Behind the pilings of the vanished palace, set upon a steep beach, now stood the double stockade to which Mantusen had evidently retired. The outer and inner walls of this stockade, which opened to the river itself, were both much lower than those of the Dyaks, but strongly built and advantageously placed. Within those defenses figures were moving, recognizable even at the distance as Malays. At a glance I could see that a few scores of Malay krismen
could hold that place until they starved, against almost any number of fighting men equipped with primitive weapons.

More throwing-spears began to sting into the water around us
now, cleaving deep, then rising again to float away. A dart from a sumptuous, fired from a hopeless distance, stuck momentarily in the back of my wrist, then fell off.

One of those loaded-bamboo throwing spears caught the stroke-
r's back of the head with a sound
like a falling coconut, and he collapsed, one shoulder trailing in the water. His oar dropped free, and I caught it out of the water and shipped it, as we boiled past.

Then abruptly the spears seemed to be all around us, so that you could not count the flickers in the air or the splashes in the water.
They ripped into the smooth surface of the prau as if somebody
had thrown a handful of gravel.

Clyde said, "The damned fools
will hurt somebody if they don't look out!"
One of the spears struck an oar
close by young Slider's hands, and the high spinning bound of the glancing spear gave an idea of the force with which it had been thrown. It came and went like a shadow, leaving a quick flowing curtain of blood on Slider's cheek.

It began to drip and run down his chest and his sweat-soaked shirt,
without Slider or anybody else
knowing just how or how much
he had been wounded.

Sea-going Fraus
ANOTHER spear broke its point
against the bottom of the boat,
and splinters jumped; but instead
of bounding, this spear stood firm
straight up, its head, waving crazily, straight up. Grogan was looking down at it in a dazed way
the spear was standing there because it had gone through his foot.
For two full strokes he stared at that phenomenon, until my uncle's quiet, supremely matter-of-fact voice awoke him.

"Well, pull it out and throw it away!"
Grogan dropped his oar, grabbed the spear with both hands and in a single motion pulled it out and threw it high over his head; then
seized his oar and rowed again,
slashing a great shower of water
over me in his attempt to catch the boat.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There is one
tress on Broadway, a property, who instinctively is told whether a play is going to succeed or fail. Several months
she was cast in the lead of a drama
that seemed headed for a big run on Broadway. There was plenty of money behind it. The design gave it a magnificent setting. The cast was a superb one.

Several days before opening the decision to leave the cast. "Don't be foolish," her manager pleaded.
"This is going to be the hit of the town." But she had her way, saying, supposedly, a small fortune
in salary. Then the play opened,
and ran through just four performances.

SEVERAL seasons ago, before Ziegfeld, Carroll, and White
were through tossing rival musicals on the stage, and taking pot-
shots at each other from ambush,
the "chorus" was the thing. The girls were stunningly beautiful and the tunes were catchy; as for their costume bewitch, they were let-tore to the imagination than anything else. This state of affairs caused Harry McNaughton, in one of his airy moments, to say:
"Broadway musical comedies have a lot of good ideas, but they don't wear many clothes."

However, the current crop of musicals shows a trend, albeit a slight one, back to the heavier drapery idea. The gals, in spots, are pretty nude, but there are no such nude scenes as the earlier school of musical comedy. Too, musical plays with much plot are mostly hit and miss propositions. Broadway apparently has grown tired of operettas.
Thirteen years ago "The Student Prince" and "The Vagabond King"
were stunning successes; today
their reception would hardly be more than polite.

JOE COOK has reopened his home, Sleepless Hollow, on the shores of Lake Hopatcong. This is the screwball palace of the universe, where the butler throws
your coat out the window into a snowdrift and every green is a hole-in-one. There, too, you play
the slot machines and the host furnishes the nickels. If you hit the jackpot you keep the change, but any left-over nickels should be turned in.

Hopatcong is that beautiful, wild looking lake about 53 miles from New York. For years Rex Beach
had a summer home there. It is 10 miles long and its shoreline is a lace-work of tiny bays, inlets, and craggy points. The fishing for pic-arel and bass is excellent, but the motorboats are so numerous that they frequently give fishermen
small skiffs the jitters. If hardened piscators succumb in this manner,
think how the poor fish must feel.

selected and rehearsals began Tuesday evening. Such familiar characters as Edith Kennedy,
Donald Smith, Douglas Kennedy,
Zelda Follette and Henry Eigh-
meyer will appear in this production
along with several new faces.
Sunday's meeting was in charge
of Harry Kachigan and Chester

of the church by the people. Next Sunday the Comforters will play host to the county union at the prayer meeting at 7:30 o'clock.
Ruth Hudler, Gordon A. Craig and

nent parts.

"Why I Go To Church"
The feature of the Sunday evening meeting of the Albany Avenue
Baptist group was an address by Dr. Julian Gifford on the topic,
"Why I Go To Church." Throughout his address, Dr. Gifford pointed out the educational factors that were present in the topic. He spoke of many influences of men in profession who made it their business to worship and consequently received help in their work. The speaker told of a railroad engineer operating a train between New York
and Chicago, who knelt in his cab
each day before beginning his trip
and prayed for safe guidance—
with the result that the engineer never had an accident. Preceding the speaker, Charles Brandt and Harold Canfield, presented a violin duet. The entire meeting was under the leadership of Irwin Thomas.

From An Old Friend
Word comes from Honolulu, Hawaii, that Kim-on Chong is organizing a church there, which will be composed of several nationalities. It will be remembered by most Endeavorers that Kim-on Chong, while studying at Auburn Theological Seminary, took an active part in the work of the New York State Christian Endeavor
Union, speaking at various conventions. He spoke at the Ulster county convention of 1936 in Clintondale.

Dr. Will at New Paltz
The January 23 meeting of the New Paltz Christian Endeavor Society featured an address by Dr.
Will of the New Paltz Normal School faculty on the subject of
"How to Be Christian at School."
Robert Elting was in charge of the meeting, which ended with a discussion.

First Dutch Program
A problem story featured the regular meeting of the First Dutch society two weeks ago—the subject being, "God's Attitude Toward the Wrong-doer." Sunday's meeting was inaugurated by a supper after which slides were shown on the "Religions of India."

Activities at Ponckhockie
Sunday morning the Congregational Society conducted the morning church service with Harry Rappiere in charge of the program. He was assisted by Ruth Parslow and Alfred Flowers. The sermon was given by the society president, Nelson H. Lewis, whose topic was, "Facing the Future."
Tuesday evening the society held a "Round-up" social. The January 20 meeting will be eliminated
so the group may attend the union service at the Church of the Comforter, Thursday evening, February 3, a birthday social will be held in celebration of the 57th anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor movement.

IN THE NEWS

By James H. Malcher

Austria has hailed the centenary of her railways and honored the memory of one of her famous physicians with two recent attractive sets.

The first Austrian railway, proposed by Franz Riepl, was to run 30 miles from Vienna to Pöchlarn (now in Poland). Many difficulties arose, but finally the project was completed.

The locomotive and carriages for the first train (the "Austria") were ordered from an English firm and shipped by sea to Trieste. A British engine driver went with the locomotive to drive it on its maiden trip. On November 13, 1837, The Austrians were impressed by the engine driver who wore a frock coat, top hat and white gloves.

Only eight miles of the railroad had been completed, from Pöchlarn to a Vienna suburb, and the entire route was lined with curious sightseers despite bad weather. As the little train roared past, everyone cheered loudly. It made the 8-mile run in 20 minutes, tested a quarter of an hour, then chugged back.

There are three stamps in the set. The 12-groschen dark brown shows the first locomotive with its top-hatted engine-driver; the 5-g dark violet, a modern steam engine; the 35-g red brown, an electric train.

Men of Medicine

The physicians' set was issued December 6 for charity, each stamp selling for double face value.

It was due to the researches of Leopold Auenbrugger (1722-1809), whose head appears on the 5-g dark red, that a doctor taps your chest in an examination. When A. Auenbrugger discovered the "Percussion" method by percussing of the chest. He died before his method was generally adopted.

Karl Rokitsansky (1804-78) the great Viennese pathologist, is shown on the 12-g brown black. Born in Bohemia, he studied medicine at Prague and continued at Vienna where he became a professor of pathological anatomy for a time he was mediccal anatomist to the city. His "Handbook of Pathological Anatomy" (1832) is said to have been based on 30,000 post mortems.

St. of Rokitsansky's contemporaries are portrayed on the higher values. Joseph Skoda, 20-g dark green; Ferdinand von Hebra, 24-g dark violet; Ferdinand von Arlt, 30-g brown carmine; Joseph Hyrtl, 40-g deep olive; Theodor Billroth, 60-g brown violet. On the 5-g chocolate is the head of Gerhard von Weiden (1700-72).

A fitting companion to this medical gallery is Ignace Semmelweis (1818-65), the Hungarian physician who introduced new antiseptic methods to Vienna's maternity wards and saved countless lives. He is pictured on a 1902 Hungarian stamp.

WHITFIELD.

Whitfield, Jan. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Hornbeck were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hornbeck Saturday.

Mrs. William Curry has been entertaining her sister from Tonawanda.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wood entertained at their home on Sunday for dinner Miss Mary Rider, Monroe Rider, the Misses Elsie and Helen Rider and Lee Rider. Little Janet Barley, who has been ill with a cold, is much better.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis and daughter, Marjorie, and Mrs. Delia Davis were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Gillespie Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hornbeck were entertained at supper by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Osterhout and family at Mettacahtons Monday.

PUT ON DEMONSTRATION

Port Ewen, Jan. 26.—The Parent-Teacher Association of Port Ewen School No. 13 met Friday evening, January 21, with Boy Scout Troop No. 26 as its guests.

In spite of the storm there was a large attendance.

Mrs. Raymond Howe, the president, opened the meeting. The guests "joined of the Free." Then followed a brief business meeting.

The award for the month went to Miss Polhemus' room. The Boy Scouts were then called upon to entertain. Several of the boys gave a first aid demonstration showing what the Boy Scouts are taught about temporary treatment for severe cuts and broken bones. Then Robert Clark read a wig-wag message for aid. This message was answered by a scout in a near by camp. The patient was treated by his fellow scouts, then carried to the nearest doctor for further treatment. Walter

Clark showed how a scout is taught to start camp fires by friction.

Scoutmaster Frank Palen gave a very interesting talk on the requirements and tests the boys must pass to become registered scouts, second class, first class and eagle scouts.

Following the adjournment of the meeting all enjoyed refreshments and a social hour.

The annual installation of officers will be held at the regular meeting of Hope Temple, No. 80, Pythian Sisters, this evening.

After the business session a pot luck dinner will be served and a social hour enjoyed.

Friends are sorry to hear that Charles Zimmerman is seriously ill in a hospital at Palm Beach, Fla., where Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman are spending the winter.

A card party for the benefit of Sacred Heart Church, will be held in the Red Men's Hall at West Park at 8:15 o'clock, February 4 at 8:15 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

The plan of reorganization for the Walkkill Manufacturing Company, a petitioner in bankruptcy for relief under section 77b, was filed in United States District Court here today. Judge Samuel Handelman received it and referred it to a referee.

The plan would provide payment at the rate of ten cents on the dollar to unsecured creditors, following the payment in full of preferred claims. It was stated that these unsecured claims may reach $350,000. The preferred debts amount to about $38,000 and represent wages due and taxes.

New money would be raised on the security of the property of the company. This money would have a prior claim over existing rights held by bondholders. The bondholders would agree to subordinate their rights to the new investors.

Robert, headmaster, of 234 Wall street, Kingston, has offered his services to the Apple Blossom Queen committee for May 6 and 7. Any contestant for the crown in the final contest may have her hair dressed by Mr. Robert, if application is made through the committee.

Maverick Theatre Announces Program

The Maverick Theatre, under the management of Vince Hall, John Lynes and Marion Sherman, have announced an extensive program for the coming season. Plans have been made to present a summer concert series by a small symphony orchestra, new and experimental plays and musicals, classical revivals, and the better Broadway productions. The plays will be directed by Vince Hall, who aims to bring the best plays available to the theatre, and those most likely to appeal to the artistic demands of the audience. Actors are being selected with great care as to their ability and versatility. The concerts will be given in the Maverick amphitheatre, the site of the original Maverick festivals. John Lynes will be in charge of all music and will direct the orchestra. Both he and Mr. Hall are well known in Woodstock and were connected with the winter series of concerts that were held in the Dutch Reformed Church there. The theatrical season will close with a music festival, which will be, in a sense, a revival of the Maverick festival originated by Hervey White, except that it will consist principally of music. It is the aim of the management to make Woodstock and the Maverick Theatre names of national appeal with a permanent, year round repertory theatre and orchestra.

Syphilis Report Shows Increase For Treatment

The report shows a significant increase in the number of cases of syphilis requiring treatment. This is due to the fact that many people are not aware of the dangers of the disease and do not seek treatment until it is too late.

The report also shows that the number of cases of syphilis is increasing in all parts of the country. This is a serious problem that needs to be addressed.

THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

Y. A. Wins Thrilling Contest From Fullers in City League

"Has Long Been in Use as Slang Expression"

"Y. A." meaning a drinking bout, first appeared in American literature in 1844. Several years later the Congressional Record for a temperance warning "there are some men that seek holiday for other purposes 'busts' or 'sprees'."

1863, "bust-head," a whiskey of inferior quality, made its appearance among indulging native Americans. The drink, however, was linked with such terrible sounding beverages as "blue," "red-eye," "tangle-foot," "whiskey" and "devil's dye." Literary readers ascertained.

Lewis and Clark, courageous explorers of the West, first used "Y. A." to connote a smashing or bawling. In their journal, published in 1806, "Windsor (one of the party) busted his rifle near the musky."

Another slang expression, "bust," came into American linguistic history as early as 1843, notes a story in the Chicago Daily News. The word characterized a person of unusual capacity, spirit, dash or activity, or an animal or thing of unusual size or quality. "Buster," "bust," also connoted a spree drinking frolic.

"Bronco buster," one who breaks astutes or broncos, made a later appearance and it was not until 1911 that it was in common usage. "Busting," the breaking-in of horses, made its arrival simultaneously. As an eastern magazine put it at the time: "The whole secret 'busting'... lies in completely exhausting the bronco at the first season."

Merchant Was Famous as Geographer, Map Maker

Merchant was a celebrated Flemish geographer and map maker whose name, meaning "merchant," was Latinized from its original form, Gerhard Kremer.

He was born in Rupelmonde, Belgium, in 1512, studied philosophy and mathematics at the University of Louvain, and thereafter devoted himself to geography. He became famous as a map maker, and through the influence of Cardinal Granvella, received a commission from the Emperor Charles V to prepare for him a terrestrial and celestial globe. He devoted a long period of study and comparison to the charts then available, and his globes when completed were greatly superior to any previously made.

In 1550 Merchant took up his residence at Duisburg, Prussia, and eventually became cosmographer to the duke of Julich and Cleves. He died at Duisburg in 1584. He was at that time at work on an atlas which was posthumously published. The Merchant projection, in which the earth's surface is represented as a plane, was devised early in his map-making career.

Bacteria Flavors Cheese

Rennet cheese may be divided into the hard and the soft types, the principal difference between them being in the amount of moisture or whey left in the curd, the bacteria or mold used to produce their characteristic flavor, and their method of curing. The most common types of hard cheese are the Cheddar and Swiss. The soft types are represented by cream, Brie, Camembert, etc. Between these two groups are varieties which may be characterized as semi-hard, such as brick, Munster and Limburger. As a rule, in the hard cheeses, the micro-organisms which produce the "ripening" are distributed through the cheese mass and therefore act in a fairly uniform way throughout the cheese. In the "ripened" soft cheeses, these organisms are mostly on the surface and gradually penetrate through the mass; hence it follows that soft cheeses must be made in small sizes. Cream cheese is an "unripened" soft cheese, being marketed fresh, without curing.

Mack Continues In Baseball at 75

Philadelphia, Jan. 26 (AP)—Baseball's "grand old gentleman," Connie Mack of the Athletics, will have his scorecard as usual in the dugout at Shibe Park this summer.

"There has been much talk about my retiring," the 75-year-old manager of the Athletics said at the annual banquet of the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association. "My intention is to continue as long as I can."

Mack, honor guest at the dinner, spoke after Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, was given a plaque as "the most courageous athlete of 1937"; Joe DiMaggio, star outfielder of the New York Yankees, was given a loving cup as "the most outstanding athlete of 1937"; and Carl "King" Hubbell, of the New York Giants, received a trophy as "the most outstanding pitcher of 1937."

"I love baseball. There isn't anything about it I dislike. I feel it is not a bad game for 75. And so... my intention is to continue as long as I can."

"Besides, if I had any thought of retiring, this would be a bad time for me to retire. I don't like seventh place."

Earliest Known Alchemist
The earliest known alchemist, named Jofuku, lived in Japan more than 2,100 years ago, according to a study reported to the American Chemical Society. The Emperor Chi in Shih Huang Ti of Japan, ruling about 220 B. C., is said to have sent Jofuku on an elaborate naval expedition to find three supernatural islands in the midst of the Eastern sea "where the immortals lived and a drug existed which prevented death." The alchemist discovered a remarkably powerful and fertile herb which he became king. Jofuku's tomb stands on an enclosed plot of sanctified ground at Shiga in Wakayama Prefecture, Japan, where it is visited by pilgrims who burn incense, make offerings of pan-cake or rice, and pray for long life and happiness.

Paddock Says Other Aces Might Have Beaten Owens

Long Beach, Calif., (AP)—Charlie Paddock thinks Jesse Owens is the "fastest sprinter of all time," but figures that some of the other aces might have beaten him.

Paddock, known a few years ago as the world's fastest human and now a newspaper executive engaged in a war on racketeers here, explains:

"I've seen most of the great sprinters of the last two decades and I've made a thorough study of the old-time stars. And I believe Jesse is the fastest we've ever known."

"But," he cautions, "I don't mean to imply that he was unbeatable. He would have beaten some of the other crack speedsters. Several might have whipped him."

Paddock wound up his own running days in 1929 when he ran on a national championship relay team at Denver. "I haven't had on spikes since that day," he says as he flashes his famous grin.

He plays tennis regularly and keeps posted on the sports parade.

Twin Oaks-Kingston Thursday, Locals After 3rd Straight Win

White Eagles Trim Rosendale, 27-19

With Don Kelly and Duke Gilday as extra strength, Dolly Tessler's White Eagles were victorious on their Delaware avenue court over the Rosendale Firemen, 27-19.

After a slow first half, ending 9-3 in favor of Rosendale, Kelly and Gilday went on a scoring spree for the White Eagles and the 17 points they collected, two less than the whole team of firemen, put the Tessler quintet out in front.

Gilday's total for the night was nine points, and Kelly's eight. B. Kupp made tight for Rosendale, and P. Rask five.

The scores:
White Eagles (27)—T. Tazaki, f. 0; T. Musialkiewicz, f. 0; Gilday, c. 9; Kenneth, c. 2; E. Musialkiewicz, c. 0; D. Kelly, g. 8; B. Debroski, g. 2; W. Tazaki, f. 0.

Rosendale (19)—P. Rask, f. 5; D. Rask, f. 3; J. Regan, c. 0; 1. Auchmoody, c. 3; E. Kupp, c. 8; Gilday, g. 0.

Score at end of first half, 9-3, in favor of Rosendale. Fouls committed: Rosendale 8, Eagles 10. Referee, Spitzer.

Young Golfers Lack Ability

Melbourne, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Marion Miley said today she believed the present crop of women golfers would "stay on top for the next few years."

"I know of no young player at present who shows unusual ability for tournament or championship play," said the black-haired Lexington, Ky., veteran.

Miss Miley saw the Curtis Cup matches next September as a nip-and-tuck battle with Jessie Anderson and Mrs. Andrew Holm rated one-two among the English players.

Alexander: Then and Now

ABOUT A DECADE AGO

Grover Cleveland Alexander (above), one of the great right-handed pitchers of all time, was wearing the end of a 20-year career in the National League. He was to quit holding these league records: Most games pitched (198); most wins (373); earned-run average of 1.22; 99 shutout games. And these records for both major leagues: 16 shutouts in one season (1916); most victories (28) as a major league freshman. He had won 50 or more games in each of three straight years.

AND TODAY
Alexander (below), Old Pete to his friends, has just been elected to baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y. Alexander is 51. Poor and battered by life, he received the news that his name was to be immortalized at Springfield, Ill. He took it calmly. His main worry at present is how to find a job.

14-Club Rule Has No Effect On Golf Tournament Scores

Birdseye View Of Sports Events

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—It looks as if the United States Golf Association would have to try some other means than the 14-club limit if it wants to keep old man par from looking silly.

Tournament golfers have been laboring since January 1 under the new rule which limits them to 14 clubs, the same ones, from start to finish of a tourney. So far the only beneficial results that have been seen are the lightening of the burden upon the caddies and the removal of some of the mental burden on the boys who occasionally had trouble deciding which club to use.

The scores don't show any great change. The professional sharpshooters who follow the winter circuit still manage to make the game look ridiculously easy and the star amateurs manage to keep their scores close to par.

Here are a few of the results compiled in about three weeks: In three major open tournaments in southern California, the winning scores for the ten rounds have averaged 4.8 strokes with the low marks of 64 made by Jimmy Thomson and Byron Nelson at Pasadena last Sunday.

By picking the best scores each day and perhaps tossing in Frank Moore's 67 to win the one-day Juzzy Dean tourney and Denny Shute's informal 64 to crack the Miami Biltmore course record this figure could be lowered considerably.

The 65.8 average comes from rounds of 65-66-74-68 by Thomson to win the Los Angeles open. Sam Snead's 72-67 at Del Mar, Calif., and Henry Picard's 70-66-71-69 at Pasadena. All these rounds were played over courses where par was 71 or 72. More to the point, perhaps, is the fact the pros had to average 75 or better in the qualifying rounds at Los Angeles and Pasadena to be allowed to play the last two days.

In these two tournaments the low amateurs, Bruce McCormick and Jimmy McHale, averaged 71.37 for eight rounds and McCormick alone compiled a 71.7 average.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, leading feminine sharpshooter, has checked in so far with medal rounds of 78-79-77-73 and even the baseball players are threatening par in their own private tournament and in free-for-all events the leading golfers in major league ranks have averaged 74.3 strokes.

Mungo appeared to like the idea of being on the same club with Dizzy Dean.

"Diz and me are just about the same when it comes to liking wind," commented the 213-pound right-hander. "Put us little breezes together and there ought to be a storm stirred up somewhere in the league."

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Van Ling Mungo turned weatherman long enough today to forecast "stormy sailing" for other clubs in the National League if Brooklyn sends him to St. Louis.

The Brooklyn fireball pitcher is definitely on the block for a sale or trade and Larry MacPhail, new Brooklyn manager, was at St. Louis today to see if he could negotiate a player exchange with Branch Ricker, the Cardinals vice president.

Mungo appeared to like the idea of being on the same club with Dizzy Dean.

Morgie Says Colonials Will Drive Hard to Beat Celtics

Frank Morgenweck's Colonials will try to blast their way out of the American League cellar with a win over Kate Smith's Celtics tonight at the municipal auditorium and as they go about their job, one of the most thrilling and exciting contests of the season is expected to develop.

With his roster of eight men, eight of the best in the American League, including Phil Rabin, leading scorer of the loop, in top form, Morgenweck hopes to make the Celtics the victims of tonight's encounter and will drive them to the limit in the race under the new rule barring the center jump.

With the jump eliminated, American League basketball has become one of the most gruelling sports on the calendar, the sort that makes even the youngsters gasp for breath as they follow the ball around the court with not even a minute's rest except for time outs, which are few and far between.

The Celtic lineup is composed of youngsters who like the hard driving of the new ruling, because it gives them the edge near the end of the battle when their opponents are worn down. Although they lost their last two games, the Colonials put on extra steam in the closing minutes, proving that they are capable of standing up under the pressure.

"My boys will be in there right up until the last whistle tonight," said Morgie, "and I look for them to upset the Celtics."

The probable starting lineups:
Colonials: Stanton, f. Berenson; Parnack, c. Johnson; Hearn, g. Kelleher; Rabin, g. Kramer; Moe Dabiller, Dave Bass, and Jimmy Brown will be in reserve for Kingston.

Standing of Clubs

Scoring Increased by Ban of Center Jump in American Loop

BOWLING

By JOHN J. O'BRIEN
(President American League)

With the introduction of the elimination of the center jump into the American Basketball League starting the second half of the season, which got under way last Wednesday night at Kingston, the consensus of opinion throughout the circuit is that scoring has been materially increased. Another point is the apparent evenness of competition.

In the six games played so far during this section, four have been won by three points or less. Apparently the professional teams have changed their styles to meet the new requirements, and while it was felt that all six clubs entered in this half of the American League pennant race had an excellent chance of upsetting the plans of the Jersey Reds to win in both divisions, it was not foreseen that the introduction of this elimination of the center jump for the major part of the contest would result in so closely waged exhibitions as has been true for the past week.

Four games out of six have also been won by the visiting teams. The Jersey Reds triumphed at Kingston and at the Celtics, the Jewels defeated Philadelphia in the Quaker City, and Philadelphia in turn took an extra period thriller from Visitation at Brooklyn.

The remarkable record attained in the first half of the season when 54 games were won by the visiting teams out of 70 played, has left the majority of fans in an uncertain frame of mind as to whether the best way to enjoy the playing of each team is to watch it on the road, or at home.

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—The success or failure of the Detroit Tigers in the 1938 baseball wars, in the opinion of Leon "Goose" Goslin, depends upon the pitching arm of Schoolboy Rowe.

"If Rowe can come back, the Tigers will be up there battling the Cleveland Indians and the Yankees for first place," the one time American league batting champion predicted today.

However, Goslin, released unconditionally by Detroit at the end of last season, said he believed Cleveland would be the team to beat in the coming American league campaign.

Wicks Sponsors 2 Bills in Senate

Albany, Jan. 26 (Special).—Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Republican, of Kingston, is sponsor in the Senate of two bills which are being backed in the Assembly by Assemblyman Richard J. Sherman, Republican, of Saratoga Springs. One of the measures requires villages of the first, second and third classes to establish police departments, with a police chief, captain, lieutenants, sergeants, and patrolmen as may be needed, under state civil service rules. These provisions, however, will not affect any members of forces now in office. For villages other than first, second and third class, these provisions may become effective only after submission to a referendum vote.

The second Wicks-Sherman bill requires 75 per cent, instead of a majority, of any local pension system to elect to become a member of the State Employees' Retirement System.

Both bills have been referred to committee for further consideration.

MACHINES MAY RULE WORLD, PREDICTION

Professor Cites Changes Due to Mechanics.

Pittsburgh.—Futuristic novels and fiction magazines often have pictured a world ruled by robots, but Dr. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago believes the world already is under the power of the machines it has invented.

He explained the theory recently in an address to a joint meeting of several Pittsburgh organizations.

Machines, he said, are causing centralization of government at Washington. Rapid transportation and communication are the reasons.

"Automobiles have done more to break down states' rights than the Civil war," Dr. Ogburn said, "and there has been a spiritual breakdown of county government all over the country."

Another influence of machinery is seen by Ogburn in the character of national government. He said that various industrial and special interest groups are sending representatives to the "third house" (lobbyists), which eventually will lead to weakening of legislative government and strengthening of administrative government.

"The character of the home has been completely changed in the last half-century," he said. "Formerly 90 per cent of all the family needs were produced in the household, but steam power has changed that. It is more economical to manufacture articles in factories."

"Now the home is little more than a parking place. Often it is nothing more than a few rooms over a garage."

Machines just over the horizon are going to produce a still greater change, Dr. Ogburn said. Television will bring the world indoors; cheapening of air-conditioning methods might bring a general movement to the tropics, where warm air could be cooled for the house; devices such as the "electric eye"—which can sort cans, grade tobacco and even count money—are likely to take the place of many workers.

To compensate for those losses of jobs, he said, business' best bet is to exploit the new industries.

Grading Hardwood Lumber
The grade of a piece of hardwood lumber is determined by the proportion of the piece which can be cut into a certain number of smaller pieces of usable material. This usable material must have one face "clear" and the reverse face sound for the higher grades, but the lowest grade may be composed of sound cuttings. The highest grade of hardwood lumber is termed "firsts" and the next grade "seconds," usually written FAS as these two kinds of lumber are most often combined into one grade. The third grade of hardwood lumber is termed "selects" and this is followed by No. 1 Common, No. 2 Common, Sound wormy, No. 3A Common, and No. 3B Common. Standard lengths run from 4 to 16 feet but not over 50 per cent of odd lengths are admitted. Standard thicknesses run from three-eighths to six inches rough.

United States Marine Hospital No. 68, commonly known as the Lepers' home, is located on what was once the old General Camp Plantation at Carville, Louisiana. The old residence, used as an administration building, was constructed in 1857. The Lepers' home was founded by the state of Louisiana in 1894, and placed under the charge of the order, "Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul." In 1921, it was turned over to the federal government and is the only hospital in the United States treating leprosy. The staff consists of doctors, dentist, priest, Protestant minister and nurses.

Origin of the Airedale
The Airedale originally came from the Aire valley in England, hence its name, says Better Homes and Gardens magazine. He was developed from the Otterhound and an extinct black and tan terrier. The Airedale is considered king of the terrier family by many, is a loyal companion, splendid for children, and a good watchdog. He can be trained for hunting on both land and water, the latter trait having been handed down by his Otterhound forefathers.

Australian Native Killer
Slain After Five Years
Sydney, Australia.—Northern territory police have been saved the trouble of searching further for Smiler, a notorious bad man aboriginal, who has been responsible for the deaths of at least five aborigines in the last five years.

Black justice has moved faster than the white man's, and Smiler's body, riddled with spears, has been found in the northern jungle.

Smiler, a strong, cunning and brutal fighter, had been the bogey-man of tribes throughout the far north. His bad deeds had made him an outlaw, and he hunted like a lone wolf. Frightful tales were told of his savage ways, and native women and children lived in constant terror of him.

Last September Smiler came out of the Arnhem Land aboriginal reserve, and accompanied by another aboriginal, Jackie, found temporary employment on a peanut farm. Smiler and Jackie fell in love with the same native girl. She rebuffed Smiler, so he killed Jackie.

54 Guards of Prisons Promoted

Albany, Jan. 26 (Special).—Fifty four guards from various state prisons met with State Correction Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney in Albany Tuesday, to receive offers of promotions as principal keeper, captains, lieutenants, and sergeants, as the result of civil service examinations conducted last July.

Ten of those present declined the appointments proffered them, on the grounds that the new job would entail moving home and family to another section of the state.

John F. Coughlin was named principal keeper of Great Meadow Prison at Comstock, at the opening of the meeting by Commissioner Mulrooney. Only two of the four men designated to assume duties at Walkkill Medium Security Prison, Walkill, were accepted appointments.

George McKenzie, of Elmira, appointed a sergeant, and Floyd Larock, of Danamora, as a lieutenant. Allen Caywood and Weaver C. Moss, at present guards at Elmira Reformatory, declined appointments as sergeants at Walkill.

Joseph P. Conboy, of Danamora, will become a lieutenant at Napanoch Institute for Male Delinquent Delinquents, on July 1, 1938, and Lloyd Wilklow, of Napanoch, will be promoted to rank of captain at the same time.

Robert E. Decker, of Napanoch, has been appointed sergeant at Woodbourne State Prison, Woodbourne, while Joseph McKenzie, of Danamora, will become lieutenant and Robert E. Murphy, of Walkill, will become captain at Woodbourne.

With the exception of a few appointments, the new appointees will assume their duties on February 1.

Alfred G. Werben, of Napanoch, declined an appointment as sergeant at Great Meadow Prison, Comstock, and George J. Winsman, Napanoch, declined a similar designation to Sing Sing Prison, Ossining.

Commissioner Mulrooney congratulated the officers upon their assumption of added responsibilities, pointing out that prison service is highly professional, and offers opportunity for a career.

The State, he said, through the establishment of the Central Guard School, at Walkill Prison, is endeavoring to put the guard service upon a higher plane.

Dr. Leo J. Palmer, superintendent of Walkill Prison, called upon by Commissioner Mulrooney to address the group, stressed the need for providing a good example.

"As you behave," he told the new officers, "so will those under you behave."
